

Long time no see. I'm Miyama, in charge of original illustrations.
I'm in charge of "Imperial Knights," "Divine Miko Koyori," and the like.

I appear once every few years..... no joke.....It is I, the one worried that I'm like a meaningless, rare enemy character, one that makes people tilt their heads and say "Why is this enemy in the game?"

As, with no features other than an extremely low encounter rate, I don't give a lot of experience or drop precious items.

Please excuse me.

However, one day, I received a message from Yuuki.

Yuuki "There's a white liquid shot by the tougher characters and mobs in 'Imperial Knights,' right?"

Miyama "You're talking about semen."

Yuuki "Couldn't you do something a little more with it?"

Miyama "What now!? You're saying the man-juice I draw is undrinkable?"

Yuuki "I can't drink it! Could YOU?"

Miyama "Don't speak nonsense. Who could drink that!?
Do you suspect that I may be a mega-perverted old man?"

Yuuki "Huh? You're not?"

Miyama "Uh..... um..... well, when you ask with such a straight face....."

Yuuki "I also have a straight face, you know."

Miyama "..... Ummm..... you were talking about male ejaculate, yes?
How would you like to improve it?"

Though 99% of the conversation is a lie, it's true that the director requested some improvements to the currently-in-production "Imperial Knights."

He's hoping that I could improve the presentation of what men shoot out a little more.

"A Stickier, Stringier Feeling"

Speaking with Yuuki, I thought I could get a rough image of what he wanted.

I think the current male semen (prior to speaking about its improvement, it can be seen in the trial version, etc.)

looks like it has a sticky texture, but on the contrary, it might look too sticky, with too high of a surface pressure, making it seem lumpy.

It's similar to the physical state of pancake mix, where, if you don't mix it better, it'll turn out a failure.

Compared to a liquid like a powerful gel-like adhesive (lol), he's looking for more of a watery, drip, drip..... sort of consistency.

That's how he'd like to change it.

Yeah, actually, this is quite a difficult undertaking.

Poison makes its games through the division of labor, for example, I concentrate almost exclusively on original drawings, and rely on professionals for graphic coloring.

Therefore, it's meaningless to have just me grasp the image of male ejaculate, and I must share it with the person in charge of graphics.

Those in charge of graphics color as similarly as possible to the way I colored characters in "Divine Miko Koyori" or "Slave's Sword" (I was in charge of coloring at that time).

Not only the characters, but male and female body fluids are treated in the same way.

For body fluids of men and women drawn in each pre-released graphic of "Imperial Knights," those in graphics would use images that I had colored in the past as reference, producing graphics that are as similar to them as possible.

Therefore, no matter who is in charge of graphics, the reason why men's stuff has the quality of an adhesive is my fault.

That's because everyone is using my adhesive-like semen as an example (?) and drawing it like an adhesive (lol)

Saying that you'd like to change how male ejaculate is drawn to one of a different texture is a little difficult to explain in just words.

This may be my personal opinion, but for drawing something like that, it's easy for the person in charge's personal style to come out.

If a vague request is made, the method of drawing will change for each person in charge, and you may wind up in a very unpleasant situation where you could name the person in charge, just by looking at the male ejaculate (lol)

If we're gonna change it, we're gonna change it, so after all, I'm thinking it's best to have an actual colored sample for "how men's semen should be."

Speaking to Yuuki about that, we've decided to promote this image as a trial.

改良前

After Improvements (*As it's just a trial, I only tinkered around the face and crotch.)

I think it's boring to speak about quite detailed technical stuff, so to be quick, I made a concrete color recipe for specific colors used in the liquid, and how to stack layers, etc., thinking it would be easy to share it with everyone.

Actually, the structure is simpler than the previous drawing method, and the number of layers itself has been reduced!

Diana and the men were not drawn by me.

They were drawn by the person in charge of graphics.

I am touching up the drawings made by other people by adding in semen.

In way, this is also..... Ah, no, it's nothing.....

More than that, how do you like it? It's a white, cloudy, dripping liquid that forms strings.

For now, this is a prototype, but if it gets good reviews, this image may become a coloring reference in the future.

Finally, this may not seem related to this illustration, but I'd like to close today by publishing an article exposing detestable personal information, that no one wants to hear.

I have a disease that affects aging men called benign prostatic hyperplasia (an aging phenomenon?).

It's not something so serious, like somewhere being in pain, or if you leave the disease, you'll die.

I've gone to the hospital, listened to the doctor carefully, and am taking medicine.

This might be something you often hear, but this disease is sometimes accompanied by ED, which was my case.

The male mobs that appear in the illustration today seem to be feeling really good, and are cumming quite a lot, but the man drawing them can't cum because of an illness.

It became quite a laughable situation.

Thank you very much.